

WE NOMINATE

James Ward Smith and Albert Leland Jamison, able teachers and scholars, out of whose teaching has emerged one of the major scholarly undertakings of the decade—a series of volumes adding a new dimension to Americans' grasp of what has often been called "The American Phenomenon." As editors of the four-volume "Religion in American Life," Smith, a member of the Princeton University Faculty since 1946, and Jamison, a former Princetonian and now chairman of Syracuse University's Department of Religion, have with support from the Carnegie Foundation carried to near-completion a project envisioned in the 1910's and described by The New York Times as "the most ambitious publishing venture in its field in the 20th century."

While American scholarship in the 1890's produced the staggering (13 volumes), and yet narrowly concentrated, "American Church History Series," Smith and Jamison, and their associated humanists, social scientists and theologians, have approached their topic with "over-all perspective." Rather than limiting themselves to a history of American religion in the conventional sense, they have roamed far and wide in embracing "all of those interests and activities which have to do, however indirectly, with the life of man as a spiritual being, man in terms of his ultimate significance."

The idea for the far-reaching enterprise originated with the 43-year old Smith who in 1947 as an Assistant Professor of Philosophy was asked to organize and direct the upperclass seminar annually offered by Princeton's Special Program in American Civilization. After rejecting several possibilities, he suggested "Religion in American Life" as a subject meeting two essential criteria. First, it must possess appeal for the nine academic departments participating in the Special Program and, second, it must be concerned with an aspect of American life which has not been adequately covered in existing literature.

Smith, now en route for Europe to divide the next academic year between study at the American Academy in Rome and teaching at Oxford University, first offered his seminar in 1948-49. Its impact topped even the most sanguine expectations and strengthened Smith's conviction that here was a badly ploughed area in which publication was "definitely desirable." He etched the broad outline for the series and enlisted Jamison's assistance, thereby launching a partnership that for the past seven years has been maintained over extended lines of communication with Jamison, Princeton based from 1941 until 1954, serving initially as "Religion Chairman" at Macalester College, Minnesota, and in recent years at Syracuse.

Both Smith and the Missouri-born Jamison, who will be celebrating his 50th birthday this month, are among the nine contributors to the brilliantly conceived Volume I, "The Shaping of American Religion." Smith discusses one of his primary interests, "Religion and Science in American Philosophy," while Jamison depicts "Religions on the Christian Perimeter." To their work, whether in library or classroom, these perceptive collaborators bring the understanding they gained in the Pacific during World War II—Jamison as a chaplain with the Air Corps and Smith as a Navy beach-master who won seven battle stars.

For hoping through their efforts to spur more thorough research in areas of first importance to Americans concerned with preserving their rich inheritance; for charting contemporary religious trends in a nation which has embraced almost every conceivable tendency, idea and ideal in religion; these are TOWN TOPICS' nominees for

"OPEN SPACE" REPORTS
Committee Submits Preliminary. The Township's Open Space Committee submitted to the Planning Board its preliminary report last week and then heard the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association praise the municipality and the committee for "timely and vigorous efforts to solve the problem of preserving stream valleys, woodlands and other natural open space areas from developments."

The committee has not recommended specific parcels of land for acquisition or expropriation, but has only suggested guideline principles and methods and has set certain standards to help the Township carry out a meaningful open space program.

TWO DIE IN WRECK: Two Princeton residents died early Saturday morning after this car, in which they were riding, struck a tree on Route 40. The victims were Mrs. Jane A. McGrath and Keith Simpson. Story, this page. (Staff Photo)

One of the chief recommendations of the committee is that the Township prohibit building in the flood plains.

"If this principle is adopted," said James Sayre, chairman of the committee, "this land will serve a positive community purpose even though it may still be in private ownership."

Mr. Sayre pointed out, however, that there may be areas in the flood plain which would be left in Township hands to be used by residents of the community as a park or "ramble." He remarked that even in this early stage of planning, the Township had been offered the gift of some flood plain land.

Township in The Lead. Commenting on the work of the committee, Paul M. Van Weeten, president of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association, said that the Township is "leading the way" in the open space program. He said that the committee members had been "very thorough" in the study of the problem, summoning geologists, planners, economists and engineers to provide expert advice and recommendation.

"The preliminary report is impressive in its thoroughness and existing in its expectations," Mr. Van Weeten said. "The committee has been untiring in its efforts to develop an Open Space program which is fair to present landowners and compatible with the water supply, topography, economics, natural features and the character of Princeton Township."

During the rest of the summer and the fall, the committee will continue its studies, making a final report late in the autumn.

The report may be issued before the November election, when New Jersey voters will be asked to consider a $60 million "Green Acres" bond issue allowing the state to acquire open land for conservation and recreation. Under the terms of the "Green Acres" bill, passed by the Legislature in June, $20 million would be used for state grants to municipalities. The communities would match the grants, dollars for dollars.

The remaining $40 million would be used for state purchases. To obtain a state grant, a municipality must provide a comprehensive plan for open space development.

Powers of Acquisition. Under present state statutes, municipalities have the power to acquire and improve open spaces for "public resort and recreation." Counties, also, have broad powers of acquisition.

At present, the Township consists of 16,400 acres, of which 8,588 are zoned for residential use. Under present zoning, the Township foresees 3,633 new dwellings by July 1975, with a total population of 21,500.

As the committee sees it, the chief concern of an open space program is to preserve land for recreation, conservation and for an attractive, livable and efficient residential development program. One of the problems faced by the committee is the problem of designing residential areas to avoid developments which consist exclusively of private lots, unrelieved by areas of open space.

In addition to Mr. Sayre, the Open Space Committee consists of Mrs. J. V. Fine, secretary; Gerald W. Breese, Thomas P. Cook, Mrs. Gordon Knox, Mrs. Stanley Smokey, W. M. Sloane, Lyle Fitch and Simon Marston.

TWO ARE KILLED

In Auto Smashup: Mrs. Jane A. McGrath, 31, of 102 Marlboro Road, Lawrenceville, and Keith Simpson, 29, of 405 Nassau Street, were killed early Saturday when the car in which they were riding skidded on Route 40 and crashed into a tree.

Mrs. McGrath, whom police believe was driving, was pronounced dead at the scene. Mr. Simpson died an hour later in Princeton Hospital, after he had been extricated from the crumpled wreck of the car.

The car, which was headed west at 12:04 a.m. Saturday, left the road at a spot almost opposite the house of 26 E. L. Hume. The vehicle skidded for 105 feet on the hard surface, then left the road and skidded 74 more feet before hitting a tree 11 feet from the road.

The other day I heard about a Dr. Walter Brande, staff member of the Mount Wilson and Palomar Astronomical Observatories, who knocked out a rocketed hat he previously accepted method for measuring distances in outer space.

In technical language, the error was based on the theory that all pulsating stars (Cepheid variables) were exactly alike, and by measuring the period of one, a dependable yardstick would then be had for measuring inter-stellar space.

But now Dr. Brande has shown, with ingenious use of photography, that there are at least two kinds of Cepheid variables; that although the both pulse at the same period, one can be much brighter than the other. Those in our own galaxy, the Milky Way, are of the same intensity, so measurements within this one galaxy are assumed correct, but measurements of all the rest of the Universe, have been wrong. If now appears that the Universe is twice as big as we supposed, which means that our new galaxy is no bigger or the bigger one.

This is one more example of how man can err, but science, like the wise man, acknowledges the error, and starts over again with its new knowledge. In the automobile business, we are always on guard against error or anything that would give you less than complete satisfaction.

Dr. Albert Einstein created a considerable stir when he rose to his feet during an address by Paul Blanshard at the Institute of Theology, supporting an attack on the Catholic Church made by Mr. Blanshard. The latter's remarks included a statement against the "Catholic boycott of American public schools which denies to Catholic parents the freedom to send their children to public schools without penalties."

Dr. Einstein rose to "express my gratitude to a man who is fighting the abuses of a powerful organization." In reply, a letter was written to TOWN TOPICS by Father Robert P. Murray of St. Paul's Church, asserting that Dr. Einstein had been associated with numerous Communist-front organizations as defined by the House Committee on Un-American Activities and that, inasmuch as "the Catholic Church is and always will be an implacable foe of Communism, therefore we would expect Prof. Einstein to be against the Catholic Church."

"Man of the Week" was Dwight W. Edwards, internationally-known relief worker and for many years the senior YMCA secretary in China, who had come to Princeton to live. He was cited for "broaching himself one of the great executive, philanthropists of his time, and for 'devoting his most productive years to the task of spreading and living the Gospel of Service.'"

FUND REACHES $400

For Jackson Street, The Jackson Street Defense Fund, established early in July to pay legal expenses involved in litigation on when renewal, has topped the $400 mark, according to the Rev. David H. McAlpin, Jr., treasurer of the fund.

Twenty gifts totalling more than $400 have been received since the fund appeal was made on July 8, the Rev. Mr. McAlpin said. Some of the contributions were sent in from persons out of town on vacation who read the appeal and responded before returning to Princeton, he said.

The money will be used to defray all legal expenses involved in fighting the Borough Planning Board's "blight" designation for the Jackson Hill-Green-Wilberforce area. Members of the Jackson Street Defense Fund Committee include, besides the Rev. Mr. McAlpin, the Rev. Benjamin J. Anderson, Robert Zeck, Branton Ellerbe and Minot C. Morgan, Jr., are consulting with attorneys to find out what action can be taken.

A formal progress report on the fund will be issued after Labor Day, the Rev. Mr. McAlpin said.

"SEND A PHOTOGRAPHER quickly—Harry's Brook is to our amazement!" That was the telephone call to TOWN TOPICS Saturday morning as a cloud-burst drenched Princeton with three inches of rain. So TOWN TOPICS' photographer took a picture (right, above) of Sarah and Linda Law at 98 Random Road where Harry's Brook had, indeed, not only invaded the garage but tramped all over theirs and neighboring lawns. Same day, a part of the sidewalk on Woodside Lane was washed out—when the sun returned, the sight drew two sidewalk superintendents in the person of David and Mary Keefe, 350 Riverside Drive. In another part of town, Stony Brook took a tour across the fields and across Quaker Road, closing it to traffic—as usual. (Staff Photos.)

TOPICS Of the Town

THE RAINS CAME

Floods. Damage in Wet July. Four more inches of rain during the last 72 hours of July made it the wettest month on record in U.S. Weather Bureau statistics for Mercer County. A total of 10.72 inches was recorded, surpassing by fractions of an inch the marks set in 1919 and 1941.

Actually Princeton itself has been wetter once in July, according to statistics kept by the Princeton Water Co. That was in 1938—when 11.52 inches were recorded here.

Saturday's rain, which began in pre-dawn hours and left 3.1 inches by noon, flooded more cellars than Hurricane Donna last September, police report. This was so because the heavy wind on that occasion blew the rain in many directions, whereas last week, it merely came straight down.

While damage last fall was far greater, at least two homes on Harriet Drive were severely damaged Saturday by a rampaging Harry's Brook. No cell-mate of loss has been made, but houses belonging to Kenneth A. Wells, 61 Harriet, and Robert S. Christie, 67 Harriet, will require extensive rebuilding at the foundations.

Basement Damage. Mr. Wells' house, the more severely damaged of the two, will require the entire stretch of the 55-foot north wall to be rebuilt. Water damage to his basement included plumbing fixtures, blankets and winter clothing and a food locker.

The flow of the brook was far more than its normal channel could contain, and it burst its banks the entire length of its two-mile course. It was extreme pressure from the overflowing water that caved in the foundations of the Harriet Drive homes.

Other damage was more negligible, and it was less in Princeton than in nearby communities. For example, Monday's downpour soaked West Windsor Township for the better part of an hour before a drop fell in Princeton.

During that rain, a trailer-truck jackknifed on U. S. 1 at Clarksville without causing injury and lightning struck Hopewell's Wayside Furniture Shop near Lawrenceville. No damage was reported.

Canoists took to turbulent Stony Brook for excitement, and not without regret. Police found half a canoe after it had broken against a tree or submerged stump, and a TOWN TOPICS' classified ad reports another one missing in its entirety after capsizing.

Meanwhile, the humidity kept pace with the heat, although both generally fell short of the 90's last week. One such thermometer reading was recorded last Tuesday 92°; the lowest maximum was 83° and during most of the week, the temperature never dropped below 70°.

Soggy Princetonians had another thought for the unfortunate as a result of the heavy rain: the many puddles and pools of stagnant water will make an excellent breeding place for New Jersey-famed mosquitoes.

RIDING CLUB BURNS

In Early Morning Fire. A blaze of undetermined origin early Wednesday morning destroyed most of the Princeton Riding Club on Bayard Lane. The stable was empty of horses at the time and the owner, Mrs. Anita M. Hazeck, was in New Mexico.

A passing motorist saw the flames and reported the fire to Township Police. The general alarm at 2:08 a.m. summoned the Princeton Fire Department, which was on the scene for the better part of four hours.

One piece of equipment returned to the scene twice later in the morning to extinguish still-burning hay. Most of the stable was leveled by the flames, but since all of the horses had been shipped to camp sites for the summer, the fire was not as serious as it might have been.

THE ART OF SELLING

by Wilfred A. Barnett

When everybody sells—goods, services and ideas move faster, and prosperity is achieved.

Selling is not limited to people called salesmen, for we all have something to sell, and that includes you!

When everybody sells we create a mental and emotional climate of friendliness and good will that makes buying a joyous, happy adventure.

Customers are won and held through a multitude of acts and attitudes. Here are some of the things that represent the art of selling at its best:

Courteous words instead of sharp retorts.

Smiles instead of blank looks.

Enthusiasm instead of dullness.

Response instead of indifference.

Warmth instead of coldness.

Understanding instead of the closed mind.

Attention instead of neglect.

Patience instead of irritation.

Sincerity instead of sham.

Consideration instead of annoyance.

Remembering people instead of forgetting them.

Facts instead of arguments.

Creative ideas instead of the humdrum.

Helpfulness instead of hindrance.

Giving instead of getting.

Action instead of delay.

Appreciation instead of apathy.

Everyone selling together blends hearts and minds and spirits, as the musicians in an orchestra harmonize musical tones, to create a mighty symphony of prosperity.

Let's earn more business by deserving the business we have.

Let's roll out the red carpet for the most important person in the world... the customer.

Let's everybody sell!

In Jeppon Robbery, Two young men picked up by State Police last week have admitted robbing the home of Glenn L. Jeppon, 144 Prospect Avenue, July 15, according to Borough Police. The Princeton robbery was apparently only one stop on an interstate burglary spree.

Being held in Ocean County are Daniel Heizer, 25, a former inmate of State Colony, Four Mile, and Peter Delano, 18, Glen Head, N. Y. They will be charged with breaking and entering and larceny by the Borough Police.

Several items reportedly taken from the Jeppon home were in possession of the pair at the time of their arrest, and other portions of the loot have been recovered by the police. A full accounting will not be possible until Dr. Jeppon, a professor at Princeton University, returns.

MAN HITS HORSE

On Route 206, A horse and rider — car rider, that hit and killed early Sunday morning on Route 206 near the Mary Watts store. As Charles F. Hunt, 29, of Trenton, was driving south on the highway, he suddenly saw a horse trot across the road. Swerving into the left lane, he struck it, he skidded 45 feet. The severe was fatal; he hit the horse's snout and sustained damage to his car's right front door. The horse belonged to Angelo Perane, 22, 44 Witherspoon.

Dennis Clavich, 24, of Witherspoon, backed his left front wheel into a tree well on Saturday morning at 12:40 a.m. as he was trying to find his way out of the Einstein Drive-Hardin Road area.

Driving east on Hardin, he turned left into Einstein and hit a stop sign. He then continued north on Einstein, made a right turn but found himself in a dead end. Backing up to get out of the street, he slid into the tree well. He 1914 Township police, when extricated him, that he was lost.

The hitch, connecting a Volkswagen and a Cadillac came loose Tuesday morning as both cars were going down Brainerd's Hill on the Lawrenceville Road. The lead car, from Colonial Cadillac in Trenton, was being returned to its owner in Princeton and the Volkswagen was attached behind to provide the driver with a ride back to Trenton.

The Volkswagen swayed in to the right guard rail of the road and then struck the lead car. The driver was given a summons for careless driving by Township police.

ANGULI COMEDY NEXT

On Players' Schedule, The Princeton Players' next offering will be "Romeo and Jeannette" by Jean Anouilh. The romantic comedy began Tuesday with Henrik Ibsen's "Lady from the Sea," continuing through this Saturday.

Curtain time for both productions is 8:30 p.m. on the Tuesday through Thursday performances. Reservations may be made by calling the box office, Walnut 1-6598, or by writing Princeton Players Inc., Princeton Country Day School.

Maria Tucci, who received excellent reviews as Sally Bowles in the Players' production of "I Am a Camera," will take the lead role in "Romeo and Jeannette." Robert Sugarman of the Playwrights' Unit of the Actors' Studio, who was stage manager for last season's off-Broadway production of "Hedda Gabler," will direct.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea (August 2-5) confirms an opinion we have held for some time—that science fiction is fine in books and terrible on the movie, for that matter, television screen. We recognize that occasionally a human drama which transcends time, when combined with a science fiction background (such as in "On the Beach"), may produce a worthwhile film, but in general we would prefer to visualize the future ourselves without the aid of trick photography.

Like "On the Beach," "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea" is not laid in the far, far future. A nuclear-powered submarine is cruising under the STAR IN IBSEN COMEDY: Edward D'Arms and Lois Smith have the lead roles as Dr. Wangel and Elvira Wengel in "The Lady from the Sea" by Henrik Ibsen, now being offered by the Princeton Players.

North Pole when it discovers the ice cap overhead is disintegrating. It surfaces to find the Van Allen belt has turned to fire. The key Navy scientist on board (Walter Podimos) is called to New York for a meeting of United Nations scientists. When his plan for ending the disturbance is not approved, he sets off with the submarine to carry it out anyway.

To this plot, which we find less believable than that of nuclear war, producer-director-writer Irwin Allen has added slightly extraneous elements in the form of a sea-going woman psychiatrist (Jean Fontaine), a WAVE secretary (Barbara Eden), a sardonic assistant (Peter Lorre) and a singing nonentity (Frankie Avalon). In color and CinemaScope.

Snow White and the Three Stooges (August 6-8) bears little resemblance to the 1937 Walt Disney production of "Snow White," which we remember as being about a beautiful young girl, a wicked old queen, seven very likeable dwarfs and a mysterious prince charming. It's as if the names have remained the same but the story has been changed for reasons quite incomprehensible.

Snow White herself has learned to skate exceptionally well sometime in the intervening 24 years, which isn't surprising because she is portrayed by Carol Heiss, the 1960 Olympic figure skating champion. This change does not destroy the effect nearly as much as does the substitution of the Three Stooges for Seven Dwarfs, however. Supposedly, the Dwarfs are off of town a quick business trip to the coast, maybe? and offer the Stooges, who are struggling players and mediocrities, the use of their cabin for the crucial period when Snow White arrives.

Combining lovely Miss Heiss with these three slapstickers inevitably in hopes of coming up with an appealing movie is like trying to mix brandy and Kerosene in hopes of producing iced tea. We just hope the younger generation isn't glib enough to be taken in by it. In CinemaScope and color.

Fanny (August 9-15) proves that it is possible for the same person to tell the same story in two different ways and make each production completely enchanting. Six years ago Joshua Logan was responsible for the Broadway hit-musical "Fanny." Now Mr. Logan has re-done "Fanny" for the screen, coming up with a new version which captures the best of the musical and dispenses with the less essential ingredients.

One of these less essential ingredients is the music, which has been relegated to the background. Because the tale itself is so warm and captivating, however, this is no great loss. If anything, the film moves faster than did the show, it certainly precedes it a more even pace.

The story again comes from Marcel Pagnol's trilogy, with Leslie Caron now starring in the title role of fish-monger's daughter who falls in love with the waterfront cake owner's son (Horst Buchholz). Maurice Chevalier, with strong French accent but without song, is the wealthy widower.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT. The question of punishment is often a sore one with youngsters, many feeling (usually in error) they get more than their share. Bobby Markson (left) feels he is punished too often; for Wayne Carter (center), the problem is academic; he never gets caught; Tom Carroll feels, as do a surprising number of his counterparts, that he doesn't get punished enough. (Staff Photos.)

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think you Lane. In school or at home?"

Where asked: Harrison Street Playground

Bobby Markson, 11, 16 Harrison Street. Too often, cause I always get into trouble. They send me upstairs—but I always sneak down again.

Wayne Carter, 12, 48 Markham Road. I don't get punished and I'm glad of it. I never get caught.

Tom Carroll, 12, 328 Nassau Street. Not enough. When my father's not home, I get away with murder.

Pam Hanley, 12, 11 Pelham Street. Oh, I'd say no family is just about right. When I do something really wrong, I get yelled at, but otherwise it's pretty good.

Michael Hanner, 9, 45 Moran Avenue. Too often I just don't like punishments. They send me up to my room. I know a boy who wants to run up to his room when he gets punished because he has a TV set up there.

Lorraine Duthie, 12, 55 Fisher Avenue. Well, I don't know. Mommy gets mad at me and my sister for fighting. Most of the time, she just lets Daddy take over. Then we're in trouble because Daddy takes his hand to us.

Jack Robertello, 10, 34 Wilton Street. Too often. Usually it's just little things. Things you usually wouldn't get punished for. Like forgetting to carry the garbage can back. And a couple of times I was too late for supper.

Nancy Margerum, 10, 46 Wilton Street. Too often, certainly. I think my parents are pretty fair with me.

Chris Schmidt, 14, 40 Cedar Lane. My mother doesn't punish me enough. Why, I don't know.

Robin Davison, 12, 66 Spruce Street. Too often, because my sister and I are always fighting and my mother sends us to our room. It's usually my sister's fault, too.

IT'S NEW To Us

LISTEN HERE
Paulene and Presley. The title of the new Elvis Presley album is "Something for Everybody." We listened and commented on a recent visit to the music department at the University Store and came to the reluctant conclusion that we are not Everyman.

There are also two new Sinatra records, one called "Swing Along With Me" and the other "Come Swing With Me." Columbia has put out one of them and Sinatra's new one, Reprise, has put out the second and apparently snore-breath court action is ahead because of the similar titles. Buy both and play it neutral.

Chubby Checker's "Twist" LP is in and out, so is a collection of single hits by the Shirelles, massed together in one long play. The Everly Brothers provide for "Both Sides of an Evening"—fun and Judy Garland is the store favorite on University Place. Her two-record Carnegie Hall concert is on the turntables most of the time, but you'll hear Cannonball Adderley's "African Waltz" too. And the "Never On Sunday" sound track continues to cartwheel there.

Folk collectors will want Joan Baez' album of Mexican, Appalachian, English and 20 centuries' knows what else folk songs. The Lincolnton, whom Princeton listeners will remember from their visit here with Mort Sahl, have "Tonight in Person."

Moving to another shelf, we find a recording of Paulene's "Gloria" for soprano, choir and orchestra recorded by Rossanna Carter, soprano, the French Radio and TV Chorus and Georges Pretre (he's the conductor). This is the work which had its premiere in January of this year in Boston. The recording is French.

Joan Sutherland, the soprano who has been dazing all the critics, has a set of two 12-inch LPs called "The Art of the Prima Donna" ($8) in which she sings illustrative excerpts from several operas. Our favorite record at the U-Store, this summer of 1961, is "Prison Worksongs" recorded in the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola and published by the Louisiana Folklore Society. With the album you get, not a ball and chain, but a severe mimeographed brochure, 23 pages long, containing the words for all the songs on the record. It's more entertaining than you might think.

Incidentally, the U-Store suggests that you get busy and practice on your vacation. Buy a guitar for only $24. If you're a beginner, or invest $125 or more for a Martin, it

Want to be a one-man band?

The University Store is equipped to outfit all one-man bands with a delectable rapier called a B for "boom" boom, a S-Sure isn't sure which has which incorporates all the best features of drums, cymbals, bells, bass and musical ripsaw.

The bass, priced at a cool $49.50, stands about seven feet tall, rising from a post-stuck bottom that owes its lots of spring. A single string runs the length of the instrument, almost, vibrating the trigger for a handle that beats the drum which you place the string. A carved wooden devil, painted red, oversees the operations and wears on his head a cap of convulsals and with it all comes a toothed wooden saw which you use as a bow.

The music department of the U-Store has only one regret: "If only we had them Reunion weekend!"

you're ready to make your own folk-song recordings.

Boozes, record-albums, harmonicas, and sheet music. An hour a day. Every day. When you're ready to be a folk-songer, the men's-wear department will sell you a shirt to leave open down the front.

PUT ME ON TAPE, TOO.

The Price Is Right. For kids who like to have fun at a party or mothers who might like to see whether the sound of a stereo voice carries more weight than a message scribbled on a blackboard, the Photography and Art Center at 100 Nassau has a sassy little transistor tape recorder which only costs $29.

Impertinent, isn't it? The recorder is simplicity itself, operating without volume control or even much fidelity, and concerning itself only with an on-off switch and a couple of absurd little reels the size of typewriter ribbon wheels. Case is plastic and weighs about as much as your voice. You won't get very far recording Walter and the Beethovens Ninth on it, but for $29?

On up the family tree a branch or two, you'll find Concord's recorders in mono ($39) or stereo ($179) and Wollman's for $199. Tape and its components are a new line for Photography and Art. By the way, Ray-Lux has a $22 transistor radio which you can carry in your palm, or plug into a $14 table-size speaker.

On the photography side, the shop likes Nikkorex' battery-operated electric eye.

"Life in one of England's industrial cities. It comes from the same 'angry young man' school which produced "Room at the Top," presenting a picture of a complicated type of rebellion.

The star, Arthur (Albert Finney), is a latter worker in a Nottingham factory; he doesn't like his work. In fact, he doesn't like the conventions of society in general, one of which requires him to work, to be demure, by having an adulterous affair with a co-worker's sister (Barbara Roberts), to escape, he tries to convert to a religion, but, failing for a relatively commonplace girl.

—but in another sense he does or really does.
Karl Hertz has directed the film at a good pace, giving a feeling for the atmosphere of the English industrial worker's life. While Finney's portrayal is not wholly convincing possibly not his fault, this is offset by the fine jobs by the two women. In addition, Hylda Baker stands out at the hero's shrewd and worldly aunt.

Tiger Bay (August 7-12) would be little more than a fast-moving British chase film if it were not for the talent of Hayley Mills, the appealing young girl who made such a hit in "Pollyanna" and "The Parent Trap." Actually, "Tiger Bay" marked her film debut, succeeding the two Walt Disney productions which she rapidly making her as popular with the younger set as Shirley Temple or Margaret O'Brien once were.

In "Tiger Bay" Miss Mills is not permitted to monopolize the action, but still manages to come close to stealing the show from two more seasoned actresses, the two Wally Disney productions which she rapidly making her as popular with the younger set as Shirley Temple or Margaret O'Brien once were.

assume that time is inexorable and that the opening day of classes will indeed come.

In preparation, they are assembling a collection of young sports-clothes based largely on brilliant colors in every shade you can think of, including frosted magenta, green and blue plaids and black and white mixtures stirred in with red.

Everything is soft and easy to wear to get a teen-ager to look disheveled—with lots of long overblouse and tunic effects and those kookie sweaters to wear with pants. We even saw knickers.

Jumpers have a pulled-down silhouette, and some of the dropped waistlines end with a flare or a pleat. Skirts are still very short and the new ones are flared out with the "A" line. In fact, with sweaters so long and skirts so short, all you really get is a sweater with a ruffle on the bottom.

V necks are particularly popular in the Rambler group's sweater department. Even Shetland classics now reach this neckline. The cowl in evidence, too, sometimes fringed to match the fringe along the hemline.

New models in car coats are found that last year (no chrome, no fins) and probably chrome and fins and out of car in. (Marc prepositions are being worn, too.) Cotton suede shells are lined with sherpa or ermin and there are those laminated jerseys that have been so popular in rain coats. The car coats are designed in colors that are as lively as anything under the coat, by the way.

Lot of color, too, in stretch pants and proportionately long basic slacks. Rambler's says, delicately, that this is "definitely a fashion for the YOUNG and those with a GOOD figure. Get the hint?"

News Of The THEATRES

IBSEN WORK GIVEN
"Lady From the Sea" Continuing their policy of interesting works, which today's theatre-goers cannot often see on the stage, the Princeton Players are now offering a production of Henrik Ibsen's "The Lady From the Sea" at Princeton Country Day School, Broadmead. The play will be given through this Saturday.

Presented in the round on the floor of the P.C.D. gymnasium, the Ibsen work is carried intimately and directly to the audience; in fact, it is such a close theatre-in-the-round that, in the more intimate scenes, the audience often feels like an embarrassed intruder into someone else's private life.

The round concept is a good one for this play, however, because it is intimately concerned with intimate themes. Ibsen writes of a young wife who is obsessed by the sea and by a terrifying and fascinating sailor she had known briefly many years before the play opens. In the course of the five acts, she becomes more and more obsessed with him and finally is confronted with the necessity for choosing between him and her devoted—and long-suffering—husband.

"The Lady From the Sea" expounds once again one of Ibsen's favorite subjects: the freedom of woman, in spirit and in action. It must have been written in 1888, when the play was written. Today it sounds musically and rather painful and a bit annoying, one cannot escape the unattractive feeling that the husband should have stopped in the middle of act one and either spanked his wife rudely and soundly or dispatched her to a psychiatrist.

In other words, too, "Lady" is a dated work if one did not know its date, one might assume it to be an early entry in a playwright's life. It is full of theatrical repetitions: "I am going away," "Going away," it contains lengthy scenes, in which characters describe in detail things that happened to them a long time ago, it is short on action and very, very long on dialogue, it moves along for most of its length in a manner that seems incredibly facile, and then ends in one of the most embarrassing happy-end...

No Stick-in-the-mud

Why stay inside
My narrow bed
When all the world's Outdoors?
I'd rather climb
A wall or frolic
On the basement
Floors,
Or creep inside
A window small
And swirl around
A chair.
Who wants a culvert
To sit and bawl
When all the fun's
Out there?
—HARRY BROOKS

Rain was all the excuse that Harry needed to burst his banks on Saturday, as the story and pictures on page 3 testify. No such weather just ahead; in fact, it figures to be generally fair—and somewhat cooler. Now if only those weekend shoppers don't materialize...

inc scenes one could imagine. Well, granted, the Princeton Players' cast is considerably better than the material they have at hand. George Reinhold and Edward D'Arms, Jr. display again the technical skill that Princeton audiences have seen before this summer.

Both these fine young actors are exceptionally articulate performers, in the true tradition of repertory or summer stock. Reinhold, modeling from the Shaw dandy of the Players' opening production to the memorable Clay in "Endgame" plays a stiff and proper tutor with ease and board. D'Arms, many levels removed from the loud and drunken Potemkin of "Great Catherine," plays a man of reason and strength, the husband of the tortured young wife.

Los Smith is a believable, if exasperating, wife, bewitched, buffeted and bewildered. Maria Turci handles with ease the rather mundane role of the daughter who longs so much to escape provincialism and she accepts a loveless marriage.

John Crowther is once again a earnest young man, a role he carries with sincere competence and Ed Callahan is an amusing village "jack-of-all-trades" without conviction. He has a 1961 disc-jockey appearance that makes it hard to believe a 19th century maiden would find him "terrifying and fascinating."

The magnifying glass presented by theatre-in-the-round in such a small arena makes all these characters larger than life. One becomes so absorbed in watching the very eye-balls of the players, to say nothing of observing at close range their feats of theatrical skill, that one almost forgets to follow the story line.

No less so this play, the cast's the thing.

SEA SERPENT SURFACES

Fossil Found. An aggressive sea lizard that must have made life hazardous for the summer bathers of 75 million years ago has been unearthed in the marl pits of Gloucester County and identified by Donald Harris, assistant curator of vertebrate paleontology at Princeton, as Mosasaurus maximus.

Another Mosasaur had been dug out of the same pit two months ago, but this one, an older, in better shape and considerably more complete. His predecessor didn't have the skull bones and various other bits and pieces which this one has.

The newest Mosasaur is about 40 feet long, with an elongated, flexible fish-like body, a long tail, a pointed head and two pairs of flippers.
 During Cretaceous times, he lived in the sea which covered much of New Jersey, and at one time, he and his relatives were the most numerous and aggressive of all the sea lizards.

SOME OVERLAP DENTAL WORK: Mosasaurus maximus, a 40-foot sea lizard which used to roam New Jersey, is temporarily in residence in the paleontology laboratory, Grant Hall. The lizard, whose head was five feet when it was in a protective matrix of marl for 75 million years, Dr. Donald Harris, left, assistant curator of vertebrate paleontology at Princeton, and Frank Goto, laboratory technician, will spend the rest of the summer inspecting the fossil from its ancient bed. Then Mosasaurus will go to the Museum of Natural History, New York, for supporting iron work and finally to the New Jersey State Museum, Trenton, where it will remain permanently. Story, this page, (5A) Photo.

The marl pits in which the Mosasaurs have been found are being worked by the Ingersoll Company for gravel sand marl, which is used as a water softener. The bones were removed with their protecting matrix of marl, carefully jacketed like a broken leg with burlap, paper and plaster of Paris and transported to the paleontology laboratory of Princeton University. Some of the casts were hollowed out of the 32-foot pit by block and tackle because they were so heavy.

Frank Goto, technician at Princeton's paleontology lab, is now unwrapping the bones from the marl, carefully removing all traces of marl and treating the bones with pre-servatives. The skeleton will then be assembled for exhibition at the state museum in Trenton.

DIRECTORY DISTRIBUTED
TO Lawrence Residents. A 1961 Lawrence Township directory is being distributed by Princeton Democratic workmen residents as an aid to public understanding of their municipal government.

The directory has been compiled to provide the most current information about various local government agencies, their members and meeting
dates, said Mayor Owen R.
Healey, a candidate for reelection this year. The booklet contains facts helpful to citizens who wish to take an active role in local public affairs.

Also included in the directory is a map of the township showing local streets and highways and indicating the position of schools, industry, firehouses, public buildings, and other points of interest. A brief history of Lawrence Township is also included.

By RCA Division. A three-story building on Bank Street, Hightstown, owned by the Hightstown Rug Company, has been leased to the Astro-Electronics Division of RCA for three years. RCA will take over the first floor in September, and occupation of the entire 37,400 square feet is expected by the end of the year.

The building became available to RCA following the construction of Hightstown Rug's
new plant in East Windsor Township. About 200 RCA employees are expected to be working in Hightstown within six months.

The RCA Space Center, responsible for the development of THOR and other satellites, has its principal engineering facility on the Princeton-Hightstown Road, where a new space environment test center is under construction.

The machine and wiring shops, as well as certain engineering shops, will remain at Princeton. Page 16

Report from THE MAYOR

A Warm Welcome. On Sunday evening, Mayor was privileged, on behalf of the community, to extend a welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Albert D. Tyson and their four children.

The Rev. Mr. Tyson has come from Providence, R. I., to serve as pastor of the Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church. Representatives of many groups in Princeton also extended to the Tysons the best wishes of a town which recognizes the strength and the value of the many great religious faiths represented here.

That First Day. Borough Clerk Bob Mooney returned to Borough Hall on Monday after two weeks of well-earned vacation. On his first day back at his important post, Bob became ill and found himself in Princeton Hospital. All of us wish him speedy and complete recovery as we ponder his hospital-bed comment: "I rested too long."

Outdoor Phones? On recommendation of the engineering department, Borough Council is considering the placement of outdoor telephone booths in the Borough's off-street parking lots. Citizens comments would be most welcome in weighing the proposal. The units would cost the Borough nothing—might even add a few dollars of revenue.

Eight Percent. At the agenda preparation session of Mayor and Council, consideration was given to possible drafting of an ordinance changing the Borough's established policy of charging eight per cent interest on overdue taxes.

The rate, fixed by state law in the absence of any specific local determination, may, in the eyes of some, be appropriate as a penalty for the long-deferred payments; but some believe that we need a policy that would be tempered somewhat for those whose forgetfulness or absence from town causes them to overlook the payment for a very short time. As things now stand, the Collector has no alternative to imposing the penalty, even where the cost of collecting a tiny amount may outweigh the few cents involved.

Exchange of Views. The Borough governing body has been having a very fruitful exchange of views with representatives of the Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civic Council with respect to the future of our off-street parking facilities.

The objectives seem very similar; though some of us are not too enthusiastic about the creation of an independent parking authority with power to borrow and spend money outside the normal controls and safeguards imposed by regular Borough procedures.

Tan and her daughter Julia, both of 19 Locust Lane, work on the banks of the Millstone. The class is taught by Mrs. Constance Bonetto. (Staff Photo.)

All interested participants in session will be held on Friday, August 4, from 7 to 10 p.m. at open minds and are exploring Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for visits to other towns to these informal meetings. The regular August meeting of Mayor and Council is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Tuesday, August 6, and soon thereafter.

The Mayor hopes to schedule a brief vacation—another businessman's holiday of visits to other towns across America.

INSTITUTE OPENS HOUSE

On Route 206, six experimental research models of low-cost homes will be opened shortly on Route 206 by the Institute for Essential Housing. The models are located between Kammer Buick-Pontiac and the 206 Center.

A national organization, the Institute for Essential Housing was formed to assist young wage-earners who cannot afford to buy homes under conventional financing arrangements. The Institute is equipped to design and finance houses with no money down and 100 percent loans, but it does not build or sell the homes. Construction and selling are handled by approximately 500 IELI builders throughout the country.

In this area, authorized builders are The Building Center, Princeton Junction; Woolsey and Caldwell, Pennington; and Economy Enterprises, Freehold.

The Institute finances homes in three stages of completion, designed to suit the budget of the buyer: a complete house, a house with most of the work done or a house with a package of materials which the buyer can install himself.

Believing that young working men often "mortgage themselves up in the teeth" for a shell house with practically nothing in it, and then find themselves without funds to make the house livable, the Institute discourages the sale of such homes by making the monthly terms much higher than those for more complete houses.

"This applies an effective brake to the exploitation of low-income families who contract to the limit for shells they can never complete," says an IELI spokesman.

Houses range from one to three bedrooms with an average of 1200 square feet of floor space. Financing up to 12 years is available, with five-year fire and extended coverage insurance on the house and life insurance on the buyer included.

S. J. Schwinn, Hopewell, is chairman of the Institute's advisory board. Ronald Kerns, Lawrence Township, is regional sales service manager.

Kone Suggests Code for Auto Salesmen

Lahiere-Kane, Inc., in two advertisements appearing last week and this in TOWN TOPICS, has launched a campaign to improve the climate of commerce, both generally and specifically.

The Rambler-Renault-Peugeot agency, in a major ad on page 3 of the current issue, proposes that all salesmen in every industry adopt attitudes of friendliness, sincerity and service in order to "earn more business by deserving the business we have."

The ad was written for "This Week" magazine and its publication in other magazines and newspapers has been encouraged by "This Week" as part of a "crusade for prosperity."

Last week, Lahiere-Kane, through its ad in TOWN TOPICS, issued an invitation to the automobile dealers of Mercer County to join in the establishment of a uniform code of ethics for dealers and agencies.

The proposal is based on "The Straight Pitch," a booklet published by the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York, in which the Bureau warns prospective car buyers about the pitfalls prepared by unscrupulous car dealers.

The proposal is based on stretch of Route One from Trenton to Newark. Costs are shared equally by the state and federal governments.

NEW PROCESS AT KASE First in Area to Use. Kase Cleaners is the first firm in the Princeton area to use a new cleaning process for white garments. The process was developed by Stamford Chemical Co. and involves the use of a new solvent called "opale."

Kase now also "vibrates" garments, "vibrating" again a product of Stamford Chemical, returns body to garments by a selective sluing process.

HOSPITAL GIVES REPORT

From Consultant. Princeton Hospital has received the report from Dr. Anthony J. J. Bourke, hospital consultant who was retained several months ago by the Hospital to study the establishment of the Board of Trustees, the Medical Staff and the Administrator.

The medical staff and the trustees have considered the report separately and have agreed unanimously to refer it to the Joint Conference Committee for study and recommendations. Hospital spokesmen say that there is no evidence, from these preliminary discussions, of any disagreement between the Board of Trustees, the doctors and the Administrator.

Operating through a subcommittee headed by Edgar S. Smith, the Joint Conference Committee will submit its recommendations to the trustees on September 25.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK—III
(This is the third of a series of articles on Princeton football prospects for 1961.)

A look at the lineup. Always a realist, Dick Coleman has the situation confronting him well defined. After losing 16 seniors by graduation and three other potential starters through unavailability, he knows how long and arduous the task of replacing them will be. "Coaches," said he, "dirty" "seem to be constantly faced with rebuilding" years. The 1961 season confronts us with one of the most genuine rebuilding programs we've had to face in several campaigns.

It was a simple matter to erase from the depth chart the names of the Oshlaba and John Craig, the Oshlaba transfer who cannot play tackle in his last year in college because his eligibility has been exhausted. Unexpected and unforeseen, however, was the departure for academic reasons of the only letterman returning at left tackle and the top prospect to fill the gaping hole at center. Russ Johnson, 205-lb. senior who came along very well last fall to back up Stan Baldwin at tackle, had been counted on heavily. He had even action in a fourth of the total plays, and would have had valuable experience to a line that will now be even poorer than tackle to tackle.

With both Jerry Sullivan and Dick Eckhardt, whose combined game action totaled better than 80 percent of the 1960 season among the departed seniors, center was the number one trouble spot even before both Keyes became an academic casualty. His absence from the scene will compound the problem slightly.

Keyes had seen little game action last fall, but had come along well as a backer to ward the end of the season and was even top rank among the half dozen candidates in Sullivan and Eckhardt. It may well be several weeks before the majority of the remaining possibilities name the variety status.

Now Start Freshman. Coleman isn't holding himself out for the "troubles" Princeton will have at the outset of the season.

GUARDS FOR THE TIGERS: Captain Ed Weihenmaier (left) is sure to be a heavy-duty regular in the Princeton lineup this fall. Bill Goedert, last year's freshman captain, is highly regarded by the coaching staff and may become the first sophomore to earn a starting assignment.

on. "Because we will be depending so much on sophomore and former reserve personnel, I expect our 1961 team to be a 'show starter,'" he comments.

As usual, the first three opponents will be Rutgers, Columbia and Penn. If Princeton were to repeat last year's record of clear-cut victories over its first two Ivy opponents, it will be a major achievement. A triumph over Rutgers would be a major upset.

In mid-season, this is the present run-down, listing possible starters and their two immediate replacements:

Ends: Letterman, Barry Schuman 6-3, 180 and Henry Large 6-4, 200 gave the Tigers greater experience at this position than anywhere else in the line. Both are good two-way players capable pass receivers, and may well be the equal of any pair of ends in the Ivy League.

Behind Schuman will be a pair of 6-2 seniors, Jim Hunter and Allen Zink. Terry Conroy, a 6-3 junior who won his letter in his first year on the varsity, is at 210-lb. Bill Howard, a 6-3 junior who won his letter in his first year on the varsity, is at 210-lb. Howard, who won his letter in his first year on the varsity, is at 210-lb. Howard, who won his letter in his first year on the varsity, is at 210-lb.

Tackles: Real trouble here. Dick Turner is out of the picture. His departure leaves Andy Conner, a 195-lb. senior and converted guard as the lone letterman available for either slot.

Bill Wright, a 234-lb. junior, may pair with Conner, whose immediate replacement will be 195-lb. John Dietrich and either 220-lb. Ed Diller or 228-lb. Tom Kinkadee, the latter a sophomore. Richard Wright is a varsity holder. Stanley Schuster, 210, and 200-lb. John Heilmann, a pair of juniors, are also in the picture. It's as grim a picture at tackle as the Tigers have known in several years.

Guards: Quality but not quantity is the story here. Although he has never started a varsity game, Captain Ed Weihenmaier has a four-year record of steady improvement as a senior about of him. He weighs 188 stands 6-0. Dick Lenkan, a letterman as a sophomore last fall, and a promising newcomer, 195-lb. Robin Mac, will spell the Tiger captain.

On a basis of experience, senior Tom Diller is given the nod at the running guard spot, but the 21 pounds that sophomore Bill Goedert has on him, plus the latter's high potential, may reverse their varsity status. A 195-lb. junior, and Jack Sullivan to indicate true ability.

Roger Holt, 170, a Princeton County Day School alumnus, is also in the picture while three promising sophomores appear to have unusual potential. Pete Perotich, 183, Corky Muehls (185) and Hugh MacMillan (175). The latter, a 9.6 runner, gave the Tigers extreme depth at this vital position.

There is too much rebuilding to do, and inadequate material with which to do it in some cases, for anything short of a minor miracle to keep Princeton in first place this year. Last fall's fine 7-2 season was far better than had been expected, but the players who developed to well to make it possible were largely senior.

tors. This year, no more than three seniors may hold starting positions, and such large-scale inexperience could well find Princeton battling to do as well as 5-4 on the season.
Next Week: The Opposition

HALL-OF-FAMER HERE

Max Carey Visits Princeton.
Between his induction into baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N. Y., and attendance as a guest of honor at the annual Old Timers' Day at Yankee Stadium, Max Carey relaxed at the home of his brother, Edmund Carnarius of the Princeton-Lawrenceville Record.

For years the finest center fielder while he played with the Pittsburgh Pirates and later, the Brooklyn Dodgers at Ebbets Field, Carey's career extended from 1919 to 1929. He batted over 300 eight times, but was best known for his superb defensive ability and his base-stealing artistry. In 1915, the year the great Ty Cobb set the record in this department with 96, he was thrown out 38 times. Carey stole 31 bases in 52 attempts.

Understandably, Carey would like to see the game revert to the combination of speed and strategy which dominated the thinking in his era, rather than today's dependence on the long ball. He favors bunting, base stealing and return of the spitball—the latter his "cure" for having outfielders watch home runs sail over their heads "while some guy trots around the bases."

Now 71 and a resident of Miami Beach, Fla., Carey hopes to draw a major league team that far south for his permanent spring training base. His name, incidentally, is different from that of his Princeton last, Edmund Carnarius, and two other brothers because he changed it when he turned professional while still in college.

His brothers, also here last week for a family reunion, have different versions. "The box scores were too narrow," said one, "so they shortened his name to fit." "All the baseball writers were Irish," is another brother's version, "and they couldn't spell Carnarius." Whatever the reason, Max Carnarius has made the name of Max Carey immortal. His induction into baseball's Hall of Fame to rank forever with Ruth, Cobb, Johnson, Wagner, Speaker, Matthews and the others who reached the top is proof of that.

JOHN TORRES' DEADLINE: for the insertion of new classified ads, and the recording of old ads, is 3 p.m. on Tuesday.

OLD-TIMERS' GAME SET

At Clarke Field Friday. Players who helped give Princeton good baseball in the years immediately following World War II will take part in the first Old Timers' Game staged here. It will be played on Bill Clarke Field at 6:15, with the current Princeton Athletic Club providing the opposition.

An interesting sidelight will be provided by a "brother act." Jack Petrone, who managed Princeton's entry in the Twin-M League a number of years ago, will direct the Old Timers, while Tom Petrone, current PAC manager, will be in charge of his team.

Among those who will play for the Ancients will be Tom Murphy, organizers and manager of Princeton ball team before and after the war. The versatile Murphy played several positions and included a notable among his top pitching efforts—just a decade ago this summer.

Also expected to be on hand for the Old Timers are Joe Cobb set the record in this department with 96, he was thrown out 38 times. Carey stole 31 bases in 52 attempts.

PAC WINS TWO

To Regain First Place. A pair of triumphs over Hightstown and South Brunswick put the Princeton Athletic Club in first place as the week began. Hightstown will be here this Thursday at 6:15 on Clarke Field.

A 2-0 victory over South Brunswick was the prime factor last week in returning PAC to the top, coupled with a 4-0 upset of Montgomery by Hightstown. Jack Hawkins, former Princeton Football Coach,
